Moline boys' relay teams showing depth and ability

By Daniel Makarewicz
danmak@qconline.com

Depth and strength are essential when building successful relay teams.

The Moline High School boys' track team is benefiting from both.

With plenty of numbers and ability, the Maroons have recently put up solid relay times, especially in the 4x400 and 4x800. In its last two meets, Moline has four top-five finishes in those two relays, including a runner-up in the 4x800 at the Rock Island Invitational.

TRACK NOTES

"We've gotten better," Moline coach Tauwon Taylor said. "I'm really pleased with what I've seen. The guys are really gelling well. We're running faster than we've run in the last couple years."

What is unique about the Maroons' relay teams is the interchangeable parts. In the last two weeks, Moline has not used the same lineup twice when running the 4x400 and 4x800. In fact, it has used 11 runners to fill the 16 spots. Only Anthony McCammon, Nic Mizeur, Joe Zahn and Alan Cook have appeared in multiple races.

The Maroons, though, have not missed a beat with their revolving-door lineup. According to Zahn, who was part of a 4x800 team that shaved almost 11 seconds off its time in less than a week, the relays have a solid bond that eases the pressure of competition.

Curt Jensen

Alexa Allen

"We have a lot of camaraderie with the people we're competing with," Zahn said. "We're kind of running against our friends, which helps us not be bitter. It's nice."

Besides having good chemistry, Taylor said the relay teams have taken a team-first mentality.

"It's something special when you run that relay because it's not about you," Taylor said. "It's about the team. Most guys are able to step up and meet the challenge because they don't want to let their team down."

Lately, the group has not disappointed.

► Jensen starting to find a groove: Geneseo senior thrower Curt Jensen has started to improve at the shot put the last couple weeks. After tossing 53-feet, 2-inches at the Ottawa Invitational on April 17, Jensen improved his throw by five inches to 53-7 in Friday's Rock Island Invitational.

"Definitely," Jensen said when asked if he is starting to find his form. "I really didn't have much form at the beginning of the season. I was just muscling it out there. I'm picking up slowly but surely."

The 53-7 is currently the third-longest throw in Class 2A, according to il.dyestat.com.

"I really think I'm going to come alive in the next couple meets," Jensen said. "In practice, it's been happening. I just have to relay that into a meet and stay relaxed."

► Quite a night: Riverdale's Alexa Allen won three individual events in Friday's Ed Schmidt Invitational at Erie Middle School. Allen won the 100, 100 hurdles and 300 hurdles to help the Rams to a runner-up finish. In the 100 hurdles, Allen had a time of 15.07 seconds, which is currently the fastest time in Class 1A, according to il.dyestat.com. The previous season low was 15.32 by Bloomington Central Catholic's Jennifer Monk. In all three wins, Allen won by at least one second.

► This n' that: Aledo-Westmer's Kyle Tompkins, Stark

County's Tanner Ewing and Kaz Johnson of Monmouth-Roseville finished first, second and third, respectively, in the 110 hurdles at the Rockridge Invitational and each broke the event record. The previous record was 15.6 set in 2006. Tompkins now owns the mark after posting a time of 14.9. ... Erie-Prophetstown has recently put up some good numbers. After running a 1:53.21 at the Ed Schmidt Invitational, the Panther girls' 4x200 relay has the eighth-best time in Class 1A, according to il.dyestat.com. Meanwhile, junior jumper Dylan DeJonge's triple jump of 47-7.5 on Friday is four feet longer than any other Class 1A jump. ... The IHSA announced earlier this week that a Class 3A girls' sectional in Chicago's northwest suburbs will be canceled since there is no school willing to host the event. If the sectional remains canceled, the schools and individuals will not be able to participate in the state series. Three schools already have inquired about hosting the event.
