

Lady Leaf harriers will make a run at state

By Keith Brake

Staff sports writer

Geneseo has finished among the state's top 10 teams for three straight years in girls' cross country.

The Maple Leafs figured to be good again this fall, but a week ago Saturday, coach Don Fredericks' team issued its first strong hint that a run for really big state hardware may be in the offing. Geneseo placed second, a scant eight points behind Palatine, in the 25-team Spalding Invitational, run on the state meet course in Peoria's Detweiller Park.

Palatine was rated third in the first state coaches' poll of the season. Geneseo was ranked eighth, but that poll was taken prior to the Spalding meet.

To underscore their point, Maple Leafs Connie Gradert, Karmen Roehrs, Wendy Wassell and Gail Perkins were the first four runners into the chute Saturday when Geneseo destroyed the field at the Dixon Invitational.

There's still a month to go, and Geneseo's runners are just starting their speed training this week, hoping they'll hit their peak performance levels at the payoff end of the season.

"We're state contenders," said Fredericks, who won't predict a state finish, but does think his girls have a chance to beat their best-ever finish - fifth place.

Geneseo's workaholic boys are improving, and won at Dixon, too, Fredericks believing it's the first-ever win at the same invite by both Geneseo teams.

Third-year Leaf coach Fredericks, an enthusiastic bundle of nervous energy, is leading an ever-growing entourage of more than 70 runners through streets and lanes in the Geneseo area.

Coaches in Geneseo's NCIC Conference aren't too crazy about running against Geneseo's "big green bus," Fredericks' term for his teams. On Thursday, the Geneseo squads overwhelmed two of the better teams in their league, Sterling and LaSalle-Peru. There were times, prior to both Fredericks and another, enthusiastic Leaf coach, now-Moline coach Jeff Quick, when Geneseo runners were so many dots in the distance when Sterling's runners entered the chute.

Ask his runners and their parents, and they'll tell you Fredericks is a friend as well as a coach and teacher.

A tender moment came Friday afternoon, after Fredericks learned that one of his seniors, Tara Zettler, had come to the end of her cross country career.

Zettler has run on the last three Geneseo top-10-in-state teams. She had been noting some tightness in her hip; still, she won a tough jayvee race at the Homewood-Flossmoor Invite on Sept. 12.

The pain got worse, though; doctors late last week discovered a stress fracture of the hip. "She's on crutches, and only four to six weeks of no activity will heal it," said Fredericks, who said he couldn't avoid becoming emotional when he told his tomb-silent flock the news Friday afternoon.

"I just felt so sorry for her," said Fredericks. "I got a little drippy, and told the kids I just couldn't talk any more. I won't say there wasn't a dry eye when we left the room, but there couldn't have been many. The kids really care about each other, and I think that's good. Real good."

And "real good" would describe Gradert's performances this season. She won Saturday by 70 yards. "She ran behind some great athletes - like Priscilla Gomez and Lorri DeBleck - her first three years, but she's just giving us great leadership now," said Fredericks.

Sophomore Karmen Roehrs had to "kick like a wild animal" to come from behind and edge freshman Wendy Wassell for second place Saturday, said Fredericks. The emergence of those two have the coach excited; Wassell, he said, is improving 10 to 15 seconds with each race.

Junior Gail Perkins is rounding back into top form after recovering from back problems she had last fall. Geneseo isn't hurting for a fifth runner. In fact, "we have 11," said Fredericks, all of whom "have potential to be in our top seven."

Sophomore Renee Clifton was 12th Saturday, senior Michelle Landrum was 18th, and sophomore Kirstin Kemmis was 20th. The next four, not necessarily in order: juniors Kim Chapman and Karin Miller, and freshmen Kelli Miller and Jill Minnaert.
