

Runners head into payoff portion of their season

Don Fredericks was a happy cross country coach as he came home from the Sterling Invitational last Saturday.

"Every single kid ran well," Fredericks said. "We're peaking perfectly. This is the fun part of the season for runners, because you're close to being as good as you're going to be."

The Leafs will give evidence of how good they might be in front of the home fans this Saturday morning when they host the NCIC meet at Richmond Hill Park.

Geneseo's girls were third at Sterling, where, Fredericks said, the field included four of the state's eight best teams.

"We competed very, very well," Fredericks said. "We had a problem, though. The girls got out fast, but didn't pack. That was the first time we didn't pack, and we talked about that. Still, our performance there was a good way to go into the NCIC meet."

It's Geneseo's boys who will be of particular interest Saturday, because they'll be under the gun. Princeton, the state's second-ranked Class A team, should challenge their NCIC supremacy several; LaSalle-Peru could, too, if it can find pack runners to stay close to its talented Almaraz brothers.

"The key for our boys will be to pack it up and be aggressive, but not overly so," Fredericks said. "Running on our course is a tremendous advantage for us."

Fredericks explained that none of the other NCIC teams have run on Richmond Hill this season. "If you go out too fast," Fredericks said, "the hills will kill you."

Brake in the Action

By Keth Brake

"Right now," Fredericks said, "I feel real good about the meet."
